

Tips to Follow before Buying Links.

Site wide links are not as powerful as they seem but it means you get a link from all the pages, or many pages within the same website. For instance, you could obtain 10,000 backlinks from website having equal number of pages. The thing is that Google does not count a many of the links from within the same site. All the ten thousand backlinks may not be taken into account, but that does not mean that you would not get the expected returns.

Other methods of buying backlinks include article and directory submission as well as from blog networks. You should not buy five different directory submission services, because they probably submit to the exact same sites. Only after doing some intensive research would you be able to find out the best deal going in directory submissions. A thousand directory submissions means that you have struck a magnum deal.

When it concerns article submission you have to ascertain that you are not buying services where submissions are made to the same directories and it is best to check out a list or sample of the directories. Once again, a deal where they submit to a thousand article directories is great. You need not continue with your research for a better deal, as it could mean back-breaking work.

When you buy backlinks a whole lot of links would be aimed at your site. It is surely a grand thing to happen but you have to make sure that you use different anchor texts. Produce six to eight permutations and combinations with all your main key words and use them at once. Variations would involve choosing the keywords and creating new key words out of it, retaining the main keyword. You do not have to take it in all earnestness, just ensure that the words are changed at times. Another important thing to look for when buying backlinks on a network of blogs is that the blogs are not on the same IP address. No pageranks hardly matters but they must be indexed.

There are some deals which involve buying links from sites which have high pagerank but then they are costly. It makes no business sense in getting into such deals if your budget can not accommodate it, but if you buy several links from zero to low pagerank sites, it could be worth the effort. The most that is expected of you is to ensure that the sites are indexed.

About the Author

Mark Hall has made a career out of implementing advance sales techniques and internet marketing. For more information and tips watch his vemmabuilder and yemma clip.

Source: <http://www.alphacsi.net>