

Victim or Victor-The workplace relationship

Are you a Victim or a Victor? With the rising cost of goods and services around the world, Most people are feeling the economic CRUNCH! In America fuel prices are well above $4.00 per gal and much higher than that in many other countries. Many people are searching for answers.

I thought his position was the Commander and Chief of the armed forces. Well, in America the biggest target is the President. Many blame him. Why, I ask? He has the power to sign into law or veto bills passed by both houses of congress. Who do you blame for all of this? Have you fallen victim or do you have the victory?

Excuse me, but what does that have to do with the price of gas? Does his duties have ANYTHING to do with or include "Micro-Managing" Oil refineries? I think not. Don't get me wrong. I am not a Presidential apologist. But I am a realist. So let's get REAL People! The CEO's of the Oil refineries and their stock holders have everything to do with the production, the distribution, and the price of oil (fuel) in the US and the World.

Are we to point fingers and direct our frustrations at them? I know, how about protesting all gas companies! Well you could but I don't know what good it would do. Then your only mode of transportation will be your two feet, a bicycle, and public transportation. That'll be the idea thing for a family of five wouldn't it. Yeah right. So, now that we've established that what are we to do.

The Grey area (middle class) is quickly disappearing. In today's society there is not much middle ground. You and I fall into one of two categories...either you are a victim or a VICTOR. "Old-Schoolers" might say the have's or have-nots. Are you beginning to see what's happening here?

I'll connect the dots for you. Now do you really believe that a rich person is concerned (AT ALL) about fueling up his Mercedes, Jaguar, or Bentley, OR PRIVATE JET! (maybe you couldn't see the picture well with "just the cars.")

On the other hand, at $4 to $5 dollars per gallon the "middle class" person living from check to check has a hard time keeping his Hyundai, Chevy, or Ford fueled up. And forget about the Private Jet! Did I paint the picture well enough.

Let's analyze the two shall we? Are you a victim or a VICTOR. The question still remains.

A victim lives from pay check to pay check, barely able to pay the bills. A VICTOR writes the pay checks to the victim, and lives Debt FREE!

A victim don't make enough money on their "JOB" to send their child to college. So they take out loans or mortgage their house to pay for college, and remain in debt for many years to come Only to see their child graduate from college Just to get a "JOB" like his parents that took out the loan, then the child has children, and the cycle starts all over again.

Learn to break the cycle. Be VICTORIOUS! (Here's free information to you, Because VICTORS' will NEVER tell you this) A VICTOR brings up his child to take over his Business. A college degree is only a trophy for them. VICTORS' don't live from check to check, they have multiple streams of residual income! (I will explain that in my next article) You must have this if you are ever to "break the cycle" of being a victim.
